News from the Committee on National Statistics

PEOPLE NEWS

>We wish Tom Petska all the best on his retirement as director of the Statistics of Income Division of the Internal Revenue Service. Tom contributed 28 years of service to SOI and 8 years of service to the Bureau of Economic Analysis and the Social Security Administration. We thank him for his contributions to his agency and the statistical system as a whole.

>We welcome Nancy Kirkendall to the CNSTAT staff. She has accepted a part-time appointment as a senior program officer and will direct a study for the Food and Nutrition Service of USDA on using the American Community Survey to develop small-area estimates of children who are eligible for school meal programs. Nancy had a distinguished career in federal statistics before retiring from the Energy Information Administration as director of the Statistics and Methods Group in January 2008.

Council of Professional Associations on Federal Statistics,
Population Association of America, SAGE Publications

The National Academies
NAS Building – Auditorium and Great Hall – 2100 C St NW
Washington, DC

FRIDAY, MAY 8, 2009

*“If we could first know where we are and whither we are tending, we could then better judge what to do,
and how to do it.”*
--Abraham Lincoln

As the new administration takes office, it is critically important that attention is paid to the Federal Statistical System and its role as a vital part of the nation’s decision making and scientific infrastructure. This conference will focus on how dependent governing is on the products of the Federal Statistical System, from the apportionment/redistricting process to health care and immigration reform and economic regulation. It will also address visions for the future to keep the Federal Statistical System—a key national treasure—best positioned to serve the policy making, planning, and research needs of the 21st century.
